Near capacity audience hears Fr. North lecture

By GLENN CLAUSEN

In 1947 a Bedouin teenager scrambled up the barren rocks which rise out of the Judean Desert west of the Dead Sea. His chance exploration of one of the caves which honeycomb the area marked the opening of the most publicized biblical and archeological studies that the world has known. The youthful wanderer had stumbled unknowingly upon the first of the Dead Sea Scroll caves.

Fr. Robert North, S.J., Ph.D., professor of archeology at the Biblical Institute of Jerusalem, told the story of this discovery and its consequences to a near capacity audience at the first of this year's lecture series on Nov. 3.

The universally recognized Jesuit scholar illustrated his talk on "Clues the Dead Sea Community Left Behind" with colored slides which acquainted his listeners with the area and people connected with the now famous scrolls.

Fr. North's lecture left his audience with a disturbing feeling that much of the controversy surrounding the Dead Sea Scrolls is caused by a combination of political intrigue, lack of reliable scientific proof, and greedy opportunists refusing to divulge all they know about the Scrolls until the price is right.

For example, there is a great deal of confusion surrounding such a basic point as the date of the Qumran documents. (Qumran is the preferred name for the body of documents because the majority of fragments and complete scrolls were found near the city of Qumran.)

Radio-carbon dating gives the date as 33 A.D., but then that figure may be wrong by as much as 200 years in either direction. According to Fr. North, ceramics and coins found in the ruins of the Qumran community indicated that the correct date was in the first century B.C. or earlier.

Signs of greed and political intrigue continually cropped up, somewhat unintentionally, in Fr. North's talk. Everyone from the Bedouin youth who discovered cave one, to the governments of Israel and Jordan have constantly tried to get the biggest financial profit from the scrolls. They have been advertised in the classified pages of the Wall Street Journal by the religious patriarch of the area, and four scrolls have remained unopened because of materialistic interests.

Fr. North indicated that it is now taken for granted that a community at Khirbet, Qumran, which was closely associated with a group called the Essenes (an ancient Jewish sect of ascetics which

SC discusses 'Phase' errors

Merlini Lounge was filled with praise for all concerned with Homecoming when the Student Council met there last Monday night. Letters from Joseph McGrath, Alumni president, and Rudy Volz, Alumni director, praising the Council and students were read.

Several adverse comments were made concerning pictorial errors in Phase for 1960. Mr. Flynn explained that much of the difficulty was caused by a lack of student photographers and difficulty in dealing with an outside photographer. Also one mixup in faculty pictures was reported to have been a publisher's error.

Larry Kelly said that although the cover and general setup of the yearbook was good, the coverage did not fill it in well.

John Gordon brought up the recurring problem of NFCCS. Hanley declared that the society is too expensive for the college. He said that St. Joe is gradually getting away from the problem, but that no final action will be taken till the Sociology club can poll the opinion of the student body on the subject.

Dave Cook said that Delta Epsilon Sigma will manage the counselling of freshmen and sophomores, but will try to avoid tutoring as an organization. But it was emphasized that student tutoring from qualified upperclassmen will be available to an underclassman desiring the service.

Dave Hoover moved that the date of the Christmas dance be changed from Dec. 3 to Dec. 10, and the motion carried unanimously. The later date places the dance on the evening of a home basketball

Kennedy-Johnson sweep campus poll

Senators John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson received 468 votes to 174 for Vice-President Nixon and Henry Cabot Lodge in the campus presidential preference poll conducted election day, Nov. 8.

The Democratic ticket received 72% of the 672 valid ballots cast and gained a plurality of nearly 300 votes.

Thirty-two ballots were invalidated.

New academic policy further college prestige and aid students

Two very important changes have been made recently in St. Joseph's scholastic policy: (1) students on probation will no longer be permitted unexcused absences from class; and (2) above average students may now take up to 20 credit hours without an extra overload charge. Both changes will be effective at the beginning of the second semester.

These changes are not only good for the academic standing of the college, they are good for the individual student.

The cut system is meant as a convenience to be used discriminantly. In some cases it was an encouragement to laxity on the part of those students who could least afford to be lax. By demanding faithful class attendance of poor students, who are often not really poor scholars but merely lazy students, the number of students on probation should greatly decrease.

Formerly, the good student was, in a sense, penalized for being a good student. If he wanted to carry an extra course he had to pay anywhere from $15 to $60 in overload fees. In many cases, this deterred the good student from pursuing his college career to his fullest capabilities.

Under the new overload system, a student who maintains an index of 3.25 or better can now take up to 20 hours before an extra charge is made. The overload tuition will now be charged uniformly for all other students for hours in excess of 17 whether or not they are called for in the recommended program.

In a group of 1100 students, natural talent, natural ability, and that intangible quality of perseverance will vary greatly. These two new policy changes should have a decided effect on the entire student body.

Talented, industrious students

Reviews at random

By GLENN CLAUSEN

"Lovers and madmen have such seething brains, such shaping fantasies, that apprehend more than cool reason ever comprehends". If you want to learn the story behind this quote see A Midsummer Night's Dream at Chicago's Blackstone theatre, 60 E. Balbo ave.

Shakespeare's delicate mixture of farce and fancy will be acted by the Stratford, Conn. American Shakespeare Festival acting company beginning Nov. 14. Some critics say that this is one of the best Shakespearean companies in the world. A Midsummer Night's Dream will be on the Blackstone stage for two weeks and then one of Shakespeare's last plays The Winter's Tale will be tickling the audience's funnybone for one week.

Special guest star Bert Lahr will play Bottom in Midsummer Night's Dream and Autolycus in The Winter's Tale. These are the comic leads in the respective plays and either make or break the play as far as humor is concerned. I personally feel that Lahr's background in burlesque comedy and vaudeville will not allow him to do justice to these roles. However, both plays will give you an insight into Shakespeare's universality of appeal and talent and it is for this reason that I recommend the Pumas attend at least one of the two plays.

The price of tickets varies between $2.50 and $5.50 but special rates are being offered to students and teachers. I would should be encouraged to employ the full share of their ability; lax but talented students should be encouraged to make use of their talent in order to maintain the privileges of the cut system; poor students should likewise be encouraged to work a little harder to avoid probation.

Alumni president thanks SJ students

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the Alumni Association we wish to extend our most heartfelt thanks to the members of the senior class, and in fact to the entire student body, for the warm greeting, the true hospitality and the many services rendered during the homecoming just completed.

All of the alumni who returned should be impressed with the campus, the grounds, the decorations and most important, the heart of the school, its students.

Off the Cuff

That Pumaville weather I was talking about a couple of weeks ago is here and this time it should be here to stay. Bill Malley especially dislikes this kind of cold weather because it forces him to nail shut the windows in his car. This wouldn't be so bad except that then there isn't any way for the monoxide fumes to escape from the interior.

Some of the freshmen are learning that dates with girls from town are not always the most desirable things in the world either. It takes a while until they get accustomed to this fact, but they'll eventually learn.

Bill Moriarty has swung into his schedule of campaigning this week before the election. Bill is on the side of Vice President Nixon and has been doing quite a job. But I think everyone will be quite relieved when all the votes are cast and Bill can get back to his other duties. I think that one thing everyone has forgotten is that one of the purposes of a political party, if they themselves lose the election, is to criticize the party in power. So I think that Bill will be pretty busy for the next four years anyway.

And while I'm on the subject of politics, the story which appeared in Stuff last week concerning Fr. Shea's switch from Dick to Jack is completely true. Father has put much thought into his choice and has attempted to judge objectively and conscientiously in this matter and the fact that he has been awarded a fellowship from the Kennedy Foundation has nothing to do with it.

Tom Goheen has just had his first book suggest that you try for seats in the first balcony at $3.50 per seat. You can mail your order, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope with money order or check payable to the Blackstone Theatre, 60 E. Balbo, Chicago 5, Ill.

Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. weekdays and there are 2:00 p.m. matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. The Blackstone suggests that you give several alternate dates with your mail orders.

So, if your brains are seething from mid-term and shaping fantasies of the Dean's List (either one), I think you'll dig a retreat from the rational world into the Bard's world of fairies, magic potions, and other jazz of that type.

Thinking men prefer

By JOE MURRAY

At the last faculty meeting, the administration adopted a new policy whereby students on academic probation will not be permitted unexcused absences from class. If a student on probation has a legitimate reason to be absent from class, he must personally request permission before missing the class from the academic dean, the assistant academic dean, or the dean of students. What is your reaction to this new policy?

James McCauley, senior, Manhasset, Long Island, N.Y.

Terrific idea! I for one am in favor of this new policy. In fact, it should be extended to include all freshmen and sophomores who don't have a 2.5 index. My own opinion is that someone who cuts a class without a really valid excuse is just cutting his own throat. However, I do think that by the time the junior year rolls around, the student is mature enough to determine when he should or when he shouldn't cut a class.

This new policy is disgusting! It is my opinion that students of college age should need no little "helps" to induce them to study. They should realize that they are paying $1600 a year to attend school and if they wish to waste both money and time, then it is their business and no one else's. Cutting a class should be a matter between the student and the professor, and not an issue between the student and the academic board.

John Gordon, junior, Chicago, Ill.

The cut system is needed to allow for sickness, human frailty, etc. It can be, and has been, abused by so many that there was a need for modification. But I do not think that the "new policy" is the perfect solution to the problem. The "new policy" seems to be too narrow in scope and over-simplified and thus leaves a lot to be desired.

I think that the abuses of this new system will far surpass the benefits. College students are old enough and mature enough to realize the detrimental effects which will accrue to the student who cuts classes. This policy, as it now stands, provides for no exceptions. But suppose a student oversleeps a class or is too sick to make the trip to the Health Center to attain a hard-to-get sick pass? Are students to be punished for their human frailties. We are college students and the rules of this college should be made with this view in mind.

William Kirwen, senior, Jackson, Mich.

I believe this new policy is an excellent idea. It will help those students on probation now and it will be an incentive to other students to stay off probation. However, once this policy goes into effect, I believe that the system of double cuts before and after vacations should be discontinued. This is a very poor policy and often makes it difficult for students to obtain transportation home. This is a college and not a high school and the rules should be made in accordance with this fact.

Dave Cunningham, sophomore, Milwaukee, Wisc.

This new policy, as I understand it, is aimed at keeping students off probation and stimulating those on probation to raise their grades. I think this plan will be effective but I do not approve of it. First of all, I question the adoption of this policy at all. I think that it reduces the students in question to high school level.

Secondly, if the faculty must "punish" students on probation, I think a simple reduction of cuts would be better than complete elimination. Thirdly, there seems to be a trend at St. Joseph's towards emphasizing studies even more than in past years. This can be overdone. Too many standards and rules could smother, rather than stimulate, academic interest.

Pumas top Evansville for third ICC win 14-7

Varsity views

By BOB ROSPENDA

The Pumas finished out their ICC schedule with a big win over Evansville last Saturday. The victory gave St. Joe's third place for the second year in a row. There is a bit of improvement this season though, since last year we shared third place with Indiana State and Valpo while this year we have sole possession of the third rung.

The Big Red could very easily have taken the ICC championship this year if it wasn't for a couple of bad games. They showed that they had the horses in the wins over Butler and Evansville, the top two teams in the conference. Failure against the second rate teams was the factor that put St. Joe in third place instead of first.

It is an extremely hard task, if not totally impossible, to get a football team "up" psychologically for every game. There are natural low ebbes that occur in every football campaign which often spell defeat for a team. Very possibly this is what happened in either or both of the Puma ICC losses.

Let's briefly look back at these games. When you play a team that is ahead of you in the standings you just naturally get high for the game and give it that little something extra. It's the old underdog spirit, the "we're just as good as you" idea. This was the case in the Butler and Evansville games. As a matter of fact the Pumas are one of only two teams to beat Butler in the past three years. The Bulldogs are 24-2 over the last three seasons.

In the other Puma win against Valparaiso, although Valpo was below us in the standings, the very mention of the word Valpo sends any red-blooded Puma's blood to boiling.

In games against also-rans some of the tension and electricity is lost. Although this doesn't lessen a team's desire to win, it at least puts them in a different frame of mind. This might have at least played a part in the Puma losses, although Ball State and Indiana State were far from push-overs.

Even though not a championship year, the men of Joe Iofredo must be commended for another successful ICC campaign.

This Saturday St. Joe battles rugged Central State of Ohio in the last game of the season. This game will determine whether the Pumas finish with a .500 record or not. It should prove interesting.

Wild 'Puma' gave birth to St. Joe's nickname in 1939

By EDWARD P. McGEE

"Students and local citizenry are warned to travel in groups as wild animal continues its rampage." The Chicago Herald-Examiner ran headlines of: "Pack of Lions roam Indiana." Thus was the setting which eventually led to the adoption of the nickname "Puma" by St. Joseph's college.

Reports first started coming in about a livestock killer prowling the Rensselaer area on May 27, 1939. A nearby farmer reported that more than 50 pigs had been killed and torn apart by some wild beast. For a short period no one actually saw the animal but it continued raising havoc with livestock. From its huge and deep prints the animal was estimated to have weighed more than 200 pounds.

A county-wide hunt was organized but to no success. As the animal continued its devastation, speculation ran wild and the beast was identified as a wolf, mountain lion, panther, and puma.

A curator at the Lafayette zoo identified the prints as those of a puma. Prints of a huge animal continued to be found along the Iroquois River along with a smaller set of prints of the same type. This led to the story that a cub was travelling with the puma. Stories of all sorts sped swiftly around the county and three missing New York Central box cars were believed to have been gulped down by the beast. Rumors had it that a college student returning from town saw an animal in a yard and was stricken with fear. Remembering that wild animals would keep away from fire, he lit matches, one after another, all the way back to Drexel.

Reports of the animal stopped coming in near the end of June, 1939. With the animal's disappearance, quiet once more settled on Rensselaer, but the beast was not to be forgotten. The county's puma was to live on in the new nickname of St. Joseph's college.

Fr. Edward Roof, then athletic director, announced the change in September, 1939. Lest the cub be ignored, the high school teams on campus were given the nickname "Cub."

The school had used the nickname "Cardinal" since its re-entry into intercollegiate competition in 1933. This name however, was too common and Ball State, a conference foe, had the same name. "What's What in Football," a sports publication, reported that St. Joe was the only college in the country with the nickname of "Puma" and it is believed that we still hold that unique distinction.

The change brought the team immediate luck. They won their first game as "Pumas" by beating the Wilson College football team 33-6 on Sept. 23, 1939.

Unofficial ICC rushing champion

George Connelly, St. Joseph's leading candidate for All-ICC honors, is the unofficial conference season rushing leader with a total of 406 yards gained in conference competition. Final season statistics will not be officially released until later this week.

Connelly, Mirocha TD's lead SJ in toppling Aces from league lead

By PAUL NELSON

St. Joseph's Pumas rolled over the Evansville Aces 14-7 last Saturday in a game played at Bosse Memorial Field in Evansville.

The win gave the Pumas a conference record of 3-2-1 for third place berth in the ICC. The Butler Bulldogs edged DePauw 13-6 to retain the conference crown for the third year in a row, and Evansville ended the season with a 4-2 record to cop second place.

Two of the Pumas' wins were over the two teams that finished ahead of them in the conference standings.

Puma halfback George Connelly picked up 105 yards rushing against Evansville and the conference rushing crown with a season total of 406 yards. This makes the 5-10, 175 lb. senior back a top contender for All-ICC honors.

Quarterback Ralph Gardner completed seven of 13 passing attempts to maintain his .500 percentage. It will not be known until all final ICC statistics are complete whether he retained his conference leadership in the passing department. Ralph is also a top candidate for All-conference honors, as is Puma end Jim Madden who was leading the conference in pass receiving prior to the Evansville game.

Against Evansville, a very tough defensive club, the Pumas returned the opening kickoff to their own 29 yard line, and fullback Denny Houlihan fumbled on the first play from scrimmage. The Aces recovered on the Puma 30 and moved the ball to the St. Joe 18 in three plays. Evansville halfback Dave Koehler scored on a 13 yard run. Larry Duncan kicked the conversion and the Aces took the lead with 1:15 gone in the first period.

The remainder of the first half was a seesaw battle with neither team able to mount a strong offensive. The Pumas were forced to punt four times, the Aces five times.

Early in the third period, Connelly returned an Evansville punt to the Aces own 40 yard line. A 15 yard penalty against the Aces for unnecessary roughness put the ball down on the Evansville 25.

Connelly and Houlihan lugged the ball to the Aces' two yard line, and Connelly took it over on a two yard buck. Dave Beran kicked the conversion to tie the score 7-7.

Late in the last period, the Pumas capitalized on a blocked Evansville punt and drove 36

Impressive Central State brings young, tough squad to St. Joe

By MIKE BEARDI

Central State of Wilberforce, O., will bring an impressive squad to Pumaville next Saturday. They have a 4-2 record, having lost to Tennessee A. & I. University (28-12) and Lincoln University (20-18) in their last two outings, after winning their first five in a row.

The Marauders and the Pumas have played two common opponents. Central State rolled over N.E. Missouri 32-8 and beat Wheaton 19-6. St. Joe lost to both teams, dropping their first game of the year to N.E. Missouri 20-0, and being edged by Wheaton 20-13.

St. Joe's Pumas will be looking for their first home game victory of the year. They are 3-1 on the road, having lost only to Wheaton in an away game. Next Saturday's game means the difference between a winning (.500) season for the Pumas, or a losing one. Their overall record is 3-4-1.

James J. Walker is in his fourth year as head coach of Central State's Marauders. His record for the last three years is 13-9-2.

Central State has a young team which is freshman and sophomore dominated. Coach Walker will probably use a two platoon system.

The line this year is lead by Charles Walker, 185 lb. senior. He is the hustling offensive center. Walker is flanked by guards Charles Atwater and Fred Webster. Atwater, 215 lb. freshman, gained a berth on the starting unit through aggressive hard play. Webster, a 210 lb. experienced junior, is a difficult man to get by.

Tackles are A. J. Williams, 195 lb. sophomore, and Sherlock Knight, often called "the big bopper." Knight, a 260 lb. junior, leads the Marauder line in defense and is considered by any a fine prospect. The ends are Dave West, 198 lb. sophomore, and Ewart Graves, a 207 lb. freshman.

Kenneth Waters, 170 lb. senior, will draw the assignment of starting signal caller for Central. Offensive halfback, Moses Hampton, 180 lb. sophomore, leads the team with four touchdowns and 208 yards rushing in 21 carries.

The other halfback is Washington Guyton, a 190 lb. freshman. Sophomore fullback Marvin Mitchell, 208 pounder, has gained 139 yards rushing in 17 carries, good for two touchdowns.

The Marauder rushing offense is their best weapon. Each of their backs average six yards per carry, while the opposing backs are picking up 2.4 yards per carry. Central is averaging five touchdowns per game, boasting 139 points in their first four games.

John Mirocha carries for a gain against Evansville. The Puma halfback scored St. Joe's winning touchdown in the final period last Saturday.

yards to the Aces' two. St. Joe halfback John Mirocha scored on a two yard plunge, and Beran added his eleventh consecutive extra point, to give the Pumas their victory, 14-7.

The game statistics follow:

	SJ	Ev'sville
Punts	5-32.0	9-33.5
First Downs	16	8
Yards Rushing	199	40
Yards Passing	71	64
Passing	7-14	5-10

Club News

The Engineering Club, at its first meeting of the year, made tentative plans for a May field trip, as well as plans for a homecoming display. The meeting was also highlighted by the election of a club secretary, George Herbst, in succession to secretary-elect, Dave Singleton. Following the meeting, the movie entitled "Mining and Smelting of the Sudbury Ores" was shown.

Dues are payable on or before the date of the next meeting, Thursday, Nov. 10. Students majoring in engineering and related fields are invited to attend. Dues are $1.50 per semester or $2.50 per year.

The Monogram Club held its monthly meeting on Monday, Nov. 7. Initiation of new members was the chief topic of discussion with former pledge captain Jim "try hard" Crowley instructing the pledges. Senior Joe Strzelezyk and junior Bob Daugherty were selected as pledge captains for the coming initiation period.

Plans are currently being made to sponsor a Christmas dance.

Again this year the Monogram club will be helping two orphanages celebrate a happy Christmas—Fr. Campagna's Boys Town of Schererville, Ind., and the Carmelite Home for Boys in Hammond, Ind. Dates have already been set and Dec. 10-11 was selected as Monogram weekend.

existed from the second century B.C. to the second century A.D.) was responsible for the writing and copying of the scrolls.

The religious significance of this community, according to Fr. North, is that it appears as an example of early religious community life on which present religious communities could have relied for some of their institutions and regulations.

Fr. North also holds that the community practiced mass baptismal ceremonies, sacrificial offerings, and a eucharistic type feast.

He pointed out that the Qumran community could have some relation to St. John the Baptist, but probably none to Jesus Christ himself. There was a mention in the community history that the leader of their group was crucified.

Fr. North says, "There is nothing shocking about this fact, crucifixion was a common punishment at that time." Fr. North declared that there was no need for Catholics claiming that the leader couldn't have been crucified, because the crucifixion in no way indicated that the leader was Christ.

Fr. North said another interesting clue left behind by the community was that they believed in and practiced celibacy and virginity. According to Fr. North, belief in such a group and adherence to its principles could have given the Blessed Virgin justification for being virginal at a time when the refusal to bear children was, at least a grave social error in the Jewish culture.

Fr. North told his audience that 50 caves have been searched so far and 20 of them have provided fragments or complete scrolls. These can be divided into biblical and non-biblical works such as the "Manual of Discipline" which was supposedly the guide book of life for the Qumran community.

Scholarship is offered for best ad solgan

A $500 cash scholarship is now available for undergraduate students of business, economics, marketing, advertising and commerce in the first annual "House of Edgeworth Scholarship Contest."

The scholarship will go to the undergraduate student who submits the best advertising slogan with supporting brief of not more than 500 words for House of Edgeworth smoking tobaccos.

Announcing plans for the contest, J. Carroll Taylor, Vice-President of Larus & Brother Company, Inc., said, "We would like to encourage advertising and marketing scholarship in our nation's colleges and universities, and we hope this contest will help by aiding worthy students in their education and by offering another opportunity to apply classroom studies to practical business problems."

In addition to the cash award, nation-wide publicity about the winner in journals of advertising and marketing will prove valuable in starting the winning student on a successful business career, Mr. Taylor added.

Entries, to be judged on the basis of originality, expression, and practical merchandising value, must be postmarked no later than midnight, March 15, 1961. Further contest information can be obtained from Larus & Brother, Inc., Richmond, Virginia.

Our Lady of Lourdes Grotto

Brothers and seminarians hauled rocks to build Grotto

By DENNIS B. KELLER

The grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes was dedicated on the campus of St. Joseph's college on Nov. 15, 1933. This grotto was the result of the tedious task of collecting stones and laying these stones in place. With the aid of a World War I army truck, the Brothers and seminarians collected the rocks from the surrounding farms. A few of the rocks found in the fields were thought to have been meteors.

The actual construction of the shrine was done under the supervision of an Ohio stone-mason. A hand-powered crane was improvised from the hoist of a Rensselaer ice house. With this, the rocks were lifted into position over the old shrine. The old shrine consisted of an arch-covered altar on which stood a statue of the Blessed Virgin.

It might be interesting to note that the huge rock bearing a plaque quoting the Memorare of St. Bernard was dug up on the Drexel farm and dragged by horses to its present location.

The statues of Mary and of St.

Bernadette and the statue of the Agony were carved in Italy by one of that country's sculptors. The sculptor used the white marble of his native country.

Father Scheidler, whose fiftieth anniversary we will soon celebrate, played the leading role in the building of the grotto. It was he who was the main force pushing the construction of the shrine.
